ADVANCE TOWARD GERMANY AT THREE POINTS

The War
Today...By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

THE ALLIED HIGH COMMAND is giving us a perfect example of coordination as it flings everything it has in all theatres at the staggering Hitlerites on the western front, on the Russian front, in the Balkans, in Italy, and on that other great invisible and ever changing front of the air.

Here we have a display of unity of purpose and viewpoint among the battling Allies which will take us to great heights if we can carry it on into the peace.

Things go well for the Allies on all fronts. Naturally there's special interest in the western theatre because it's there that we are closest to the frontier of the enemy—closest to that mysterious and supposedly powerful siegfried line which guards the heart of the Reich. We are driving in toward this west wall all along our battlefront.

Secretary of War Stimson says "evidence is mounting that the German armies in the west have been so badly battered that they cannot long maintain a prolonged defense of the Reich, and their situation on the other fronts is deteriorating." That's well put, but he is equally wise when he adds:

"The war won't be won until Allied troops are in Berlin."

It needn't take long now to knock Hitler out. But barring a collapse of German morale we must be prepared for some fierce fighting. Indeed we're getting it now, both in the Russian theatre and in the west. In France Patton's famous Third army, which again is on the drive after being held up a week for supplies, has encountered heavy resistance along the Moselle river where he has established two riverheads and been thrown back from another.

HITLER'S determination to fight to a finish, if he can compel his people to support him, is shown in the really amazing extremes to which he is going in this last-ditch stand. Propaganda Minister Goebbels, who has been made minister plenipotentiary for total war, is even conscripting school children for war service in "the fight for our very lives." He also is flinging into the defenses every man and boy who can handle a rifle.

The Nazi leaders are spurring on the public by begging them to stand firm and hold the Allies up until the bad weather of autumn arrives to give the Reich a breathing spell. They say the Allies are racing to win before fall—which undoubtedly is true.

It's indeed a race against time. Anything that delays the Allies now gives Hitler a few more gasps of life. For example Patton's enforced halt, while supplies were brought up, undoubtedly gave the Germans a chance to strengthen

Slated to Continue
On Saturday

Salem's Victory garden show and fair, complete with grange booths, flower shows, canning demonstrations, prizes, crowds and blue ribbons, opened this morning at the Memorial building with well over 100 entries in the fruit and vegetable classes and an undetermined number of flower competitors.

John J. Lewis, chairman of the affair, said entries poured in this morning from 8 until 11 a. m. to be arranged and classified for the judging, scheduled to take place this afternoon.

To continue today and tomorrow, the show is featuring a large representation of Salem's vegetable and flower gardens. Canned goods also are exhibited.

Five granges have display booths on the floor and a canning demonstration will be given throughout the show by a food specialist. Two displays, one on frozen foods and another on dehydrated products, is being shown.

The Salem High school band will perform at the affair tonight and motion pictures will be shown both today and tomorrow, Lewis said.

Using the gymnasium as the center of the "fair grounds", the show also has booths in the lobby of the building. The exhibit is sponsored by the Salem Victory Garden committee.

DEWEY PEACE
TALK AWAITEDPresidential Candidate Expected to Reveal Plan
At Louisville, Ky.

(By Associated Press)
ENROUTE WEST WITH DEWEY. Sept. 8.—A world peace built on a framework of international organization in which small nations have a proportionate voice is expected to be urged tonight by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey at Louisville, Ky., in his second major presidential campaign address.

The Republican nominee closed himself with advisers as his campaign train steamed toward politically-doubtful Kentucky, after a ringing denunciation last night of what he charged was the plan of the "tired, exhausted, quarreling and bickering" New Deal to keep men overly long in the armed forces to lessen unemployment at the war's end.

Asserting that President Roosevelt's administration is "afraid of America" and is "getting all set for another depression," Dewey told a cheering audience of about 13,000 persons in Philadelphia's Convention hall that "with the winning of the war in sight there are two great overshadowing problems."

"First," he said, "the making and keeping of the peace of the world so that your children and my children shall not face this tragedy all over again."

"The other problem," he continued, "is whether we shall replace the tired and quarrelsome defeatism of the present administration with a fresh and vigorous government which believes in the future of the United States, and knows how to act on that belief."

Announcing he would devote tonight's speech before the closing session of the National Federation of Republican Women's Clubs convention to foreign affairs problems, Dewey told the Philadelphia audience:

"I am deeply devoted to the principle that victory in this war shall mean victory for freedom and for the permanent peace of the world. Our place in a peaceful world can and will be made secure. But nothing on earth will make us secure unless we are strong, unless we are productive and unless we have faith in ourselves. I have unlimited faith that the American people will choose that path next November."

Our place in a peaceful world can and will be made secure. But nothing on earth will make us secure unless we are strong, unless we are productive and unless we have faith in ourselves. I have unlimited faith that the American people will choose that path next November."

ANSHAN SCENE
OF NEW ATTACKCarrier-Based Planes Hit
Palau and Yap In Pacific Activity

(By Associated Press)
A powerful flight of Superfortresses raided the Japanese arsenal in Manchuria today, completing a circle of destruction blazed around the home islands of Nippon by American bombers.

Simultaneously Berlin radio reported Palau and Yap, eastern guardians of the Philippines, were heavily bombed, for three successive days. Axis reports said four or five hundred carrier-based planes hit Palau Wednesday and Thursday, while 300 attacked Yap. The continued intensity of the attacks, if true, would indicate a possible preparation for invasion.

Other Axis radios broadcast predictions of forthcoming U. S. invasions of Halmahera, southern gateway to the Philippines, and of the Philippines themselves.

100 Planes Hit Anshan
Tokyo announced more than 100 Superfortresses struck Anshan, site of Japan's second largest steel mill, in a midday raid on Manchuria. It claimed three shot down.

First confirmation from the 20th Bomber command was that China-based B29s attacked "important industrial targets" in Manchuria. Anshan and its Showa steel works, some 600 miles northwest of Japan, was the target of the first B29 raid on Nippon's war industries July 29.

Southwest of Japan China-based Liberators sank three enemy freighters off Takao, Formosa. Previously the Pacific command announced bombing raids in the Kuriles northeast of Japan, the second land-based strike at Marcus to the Southeast, and on Iwo Island, 750 miles south of Tokyo.

Carrier planes in strong force and land-based Liberators from the Southwest Pacific joined in co-ordinated raids on Palau, eastern gateway to the Philippines 600 miles from Davao. An ammunition fuel dump was destroyed, 17 small craft left in flames, parked aircraft destroyed and runways cratered by heavy bombs.

EDUCATION VALUE

NURSES SPEAKEREight Graduates Receive Diplomas at Masonic Temple Program

Speaking on "Beachheads," Lewis C. Turner, principal of Akron South High school, addressed members of the graduating class of the Salem City Hospital School of Nursing and approximately 200 friends and relatives at commencement exercises last night in the Masonic temple.

The problems of peace will be greater than the problems of war, the speaker asserted, explaining that education must play an important role now to fit young people for the problems they will face in peacetime. He defined education as "going as well as learning." "Patriotism is thought of new as doing something in time of war to help one's country but, he said, true patriotism is stopping wars in their beginnings."

Turner discussed a number of his experiences while serving with the A. E. P. in France in the last war at Belleau wood and other battle points. Addressing the graduates directly he urged that they examine their mental, educational, social, psychological and moral equipment at the present time to determine what "excess baggage" they might be carrying which they would be better off without and what qualities they ought to acquire to fit them for citizenship and enterprise.

Atty. South Metzger, secretary of the hospital board, presided introducing the speaker. Invocation was given by Rev. Fr. John Lavelle, assistant rector of St. Paul's parish.

Greetings were extended by Dr. L. F. Dorris, president of the medical staff and diplomas were presented the eight graduating nurses.

2,000 PLANES
HIT GERMANYBomb Installations In the South, Nazi Garrison
At Le Havre

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Sept. 8.—Almost 2,000 American and British heavy bombers attacked installations in southwest Germany and the besieged Nazi garrison at Le Havre today.

American bombers were accompanied by 500 Mustang fighters and battered chemical and oil plants at Ludwigshafen in the Siegfried line zone, an ordnance depot at Kassel near Mainz, and an armored car plant at Gustavsburg, southwest of Frankfurt.

All the objectives were in the upper Rhineland opposite Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's American Third army, massing in the Moselle river basin for a drive into the German fortifications.

The weather was the best in several days and the bombers were able to see their targets, except at Ludwigshafen where clouds were banked.

Low level attacks by French-based Thunderbolts yesterday destroyed 483 trucks, 217 horse-drawn vehicles and 20 pieces of armor. These operations were without interference from the Nazi air force.

RAF mosquito bombers loosed tons of bombs last night on the Rhineland city of Karlsruhe, in the German west wall 100 miles beyond where the American Third army is fighting in the Metz area. It was the second attack this week on the city.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Sept. 8.—Gen. Eisenhower's great assault front bulging within 25 miles of Germany's Siegfried line at three points, was placed under a news blackout tonight to mask the mounting of the final massive assault to burst open the way to Berlin.

The British were across the Albert canal 40 miles east of Antwerp. The American First army stabbed to the outskirts of the great Belgium fortress city of Liege, 26 miles from Aachen in Germany.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's American Third army closed in along the Moselle all the way from north of Metz almost to Nancy.

All these may be the last positions to be disclosed for the time being.

Meanwhile, through the Ardennes forest and all the way south to the approaches of the Belfort gap, which Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh army was nearing, the Allied assault team was closing up on the Siegfried line against bitter German delaying fights.

The Germans, stiffening in apparent desperation along the whole buffer front before the Siegfried line and the Rhine, were putting up their fiercest fight since Normandy along the Moselle river where Gen. Patton's Third army, battling into Metz, was 20 miles from the west wall.

Supreme headquarters announced that patrols which had slugged their way into the city of Nancy on Patton's right flank had been forced to withdraw. However, the Americans clung firmly to Towl, 11 miles to the west.

The American First army swung down the final lap of the Belgian route to Germany today, thrusting a new bridgehead across the Meuse river 16 miles southwest of Liege and fighting to within 39 miles of the Reich gateway city of Aachen.

Penetrate Ardennes
To the south, enemy resistance stiffened considerably, but the Americans already were half way through the wooded gullies and bald plateaus of the Ardennes forest region—long considered virtually an impossible area for military action.

By the most recent battlefront reports the U. S. Third army on the southeast stood closer to Germany's west wall than the first, but dispatches said the First still was rolling back the enemy in disorder. The Third army battled into Metz, 20 miles from the Saar border, but the Germans on that sector were reported firmly entrenched.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First army won its new Meuse bridgehead midway between captured Namur and Liege—near the town of Huy, which was taken. A companion column pushed to the vicinity of Tremon, 23 miles north of Namur.

An official announcement said the enemy now has been cleared entirely from the historic French fortress city of Sedan—where the Germans split French forces in half in 1940 and won the battle of France. A sizeable German garrison had been pocketed there for nearly a week.

The First army's right flank swept beyond the Meuse and occupied Bievres, 18 miles southeast of Sedan.

Washington Round-up

News and Views, Briefly On What's Going On In Capital

By EARL BERKLEY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—Ohio Republicans—intensely interested in 1944 politics because their own John Bricker, is their choice for presidential nominee—were calling the Democrats about when it comes to sentiment about long presidents should stay in office.

Rep. Tom Jenkins' proposal to allow only two terms of four years each, the Ohioans have been sure will be one of the faces. It is the Democratic platform of 1912, dug from the files by Jenkins, who points out that an obscure plank would limit presidents to just two terms.

"I favor" the plank reads, "a presidential term, and to urge the adoption of an amendment to the constitution making the president of the United States ineligible for reelection and disqualifying the candidate of this Congress (in Baltimore) to this effect."

Woodrow Wilson was elected president on that platform, but says Jenkins "the Democratic party apparently forgot the declaration because it nominated Wilson for a second term in 1916, and the first time of the platform of that year said merely 'We endorse the administration of Woodrow Wilson.'"

Jenkins' amendment, requiring a three vote of the house and the constitution prohibiting more than two terms. The amendment would be subject to the customary ratification by three fourths of the states.

It would not affect the current term, nor prevent President Roosevelt from serving a fourth term if he is elected. But in the future no president could serve more than two terms, successive or otherwise.

But a joshing colleague asked Jenkins, "what if the Republicans put a third term sometime?" They won't, the Ironton representative said, and even if they did he isn't entitled to it. Here's reasoning:

An amendment to the Constitution to limit presidential tenure to terms of four years each should be adopted. The matter has been subject of public discussion many years and I have no doubt a very large majority of the American people, regardless of political favor a limitation of this kind.

George Washington refused to accept three terms and so did Jefferson and Jackson and all the early presidents because they fully appreciated what it meant to serve up a monarch.

Agitation for sharp tax cuts after the war is drawing the interest of members of congress. None committed himself as to figures there is growing sentiment for reduction of as much as half current assessments on income.

The Ohioan suggests that revenues will be influenced by natural debt, drastic income slackening would require big tax cuts. The consensus is that revenue from income will be halved as soon as possible.

SALEM LIBRARY'S CIRCULATION FOR YEAR WAS 65,921

Ohioans read an average of five books per person in 1943, according to information contained in the Directory of Ohio Libraries just received by the Salem public library.

Figures show that 32,814,070 books were circulated by the state's 273 public libraries. Ohio libraries have a total of 10,831,692 books available, according to Walter Brahm, state librarian.

The Salem library had a total circulation of 65,921 books and other pertinent statistics about the Salem library can be found in the report, issued each year at this time.

Brahm, commenting on the survey said "it is also important to look at the record of Ohio's 29 bookmobiles. These book wagons go to practically every section of the state to remote villages and crossroads bringing to rural readers all the advantages of the metropolitan library." These book wagons circulated 2,558,856 books in 1943, an increase of 274,978 books over the previous year.

Bookmobiles operate in the cities of Alliance, Lisbon, Canyon, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Dayton, Hamilton, Hiram, Lebanon, Lima, Lorain, McConnelsville, Mansfield, Martins Ferry, Maumee, Middletown, Newark, Portsmouth, Springfield, Troy, Warren, Wilmington and Wooster.

The state librarian emphasized the fact that rural readers are essentially no different than city readers. Because Ohio has an outstanding record in bookmobile work people in remote districts are offered good library service and can compete with their city cousins not only in the quantity of their reading but the quality as well. Naturally farmers turn to bookmobile for information about crops, soil, latest agricultural developments and allied subjects. But they too, want to read poetry and plays and they want to know just as much about postwar planning as those in the metropolitan areas.

Sugar Stocks Suffer From Canning Season

(By Associated Press)

A growing shortage of sugar in the midst of the canning season was reported today from various sections of Ohio.

It appeared particularly severe in the northeastern and southwestern sections. Youngstown reported that some fruit was being given away because no sugar could be obtained for canning.

At Columbus, Robert F. Boda, director of the Office of Price Administration's central district, said no serious shortage had been noted as yet but that he had reports from dealers that their inventories were low.

The principal cause of the shortages, Boda said, was in distribution and a manpower shortage in off-coast refineries.

Every individual is entitled to a total of 25 pounds of sugar for canning purposes and the rush at this season brought on the shortage, OPA spokesmen said.

REDS' BALKAN DRIVE GAINS

Attempt to Reach Dalmatian Coast, Trapping German Troops

(By Associated Press)
MOSCOW, Sept. 8. — The Red army slashed through the Balkans today in a three-pronged drive which promised to smash Hitler's last weakening hold on that vital area and trap thousands of his troops by cutting all communications with the homeland.
Advanced Russian units moved west toward a juncture with Marshal Tito's forces and Allied troops in Yugoslavia, while others advanced toward the important road and communications center of Sibiu in Transylvania.
Official sources were silent on military operations against Bulgaria and there was no indication of any response to Bulgarian pleas for an armistice.
(A German report said Russian troops fanning out across Bulgaria in a drive toward the Aegean sea had reached the area of Demotika inside Greece on the Turkish frontier.)
The objective of the Balkan drive is to create a steel wall from the Black sea to the Dalmatian coast and pocket all the Germans in Greece, Bulgaria and Albania.
In Poland Red army forces edged forward northeast of Warsaw toward the southern border of East Prussia, fighting against unusually stiff German resistance that included large forces of tanks and self-propelled guns.
A Tass dispatch from Constanta said that in the Bulgarian Black sea ports of Burgas and Varna the Germans were permitted to sink 74 Nazi vessels, including seven submarines, 32 minesweepers, 25 landing barges and four transports.
Tass said the sinking took place between Aug. 23 and Aug. 28 and that from reports it had received the Bulgarian government not only failed to interfere or intern the crews, but sent them to Germany.

Blue Tokens Won't Be Needed Oct. 1st

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8. — The Office of Price Administration is scrapping its seven months old system of blue tokens for buying processed foods.
The blue token will go out of use Oct. 1, no longer needed because most canned foods are going off the ration list.
Between Sept. 17—When all but fruit and a few other canned foods go off rationing—and Oct. 1, shoppers will not be given blue tokens as change and they will be able to spend the processed food discs only in units of ten. From that time on point values on processed foods will be in multiples of ten. There will be no change in use of red tokens for buying meats and dairy products.

Food Rationing Easing Termed Political Move

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8. — The plan to relax food rationing restrictions Sept. 17 was termed "just another case of politics" by Rep. Jenkins (R-Ohio) today.
"It has been common gossip for some time the New Deal would abandon rationing of many articles just before the election," Jenkins said today.
"Yesterday's announcement by Justice Byrnes (War Mobilization Director) showed the people guessed right."
"For some unknown reason it was announced by Mr. Byrnes. Presumably because he is closer to the White House is the reason for this shift of authority from the OPA," Byrnes announced yesterday.

Bringing Up Baby In The Right Way

Prepared By The Staff of The Child Study Association of America, Inc.

"I DON'T get a minute's peace," says one mother. "Mary is always at my heels, into everything, and her greatest delight is to pull everything out of my bureau drawers."

Everything within sight is exciting and interesting as soon as a child finds he can move around—by crawling, sliding, edging sideways, or walking—under his own steam. Nothing is safe. Ash trays, cigarettes, dishes, your favorite book with a bright cover, your sewing box—they are a new world to explore.

It takes a long time for him to understand, so remove the breakables and let him roam.

He needs plenty of chance to move around, to climb and to try out his body in all kinds of ways. He will be awkward at first, but he learns quickly if you allow him the freedom of working it out and playing in his own way. Don't try to help him with everything.

Give him things that interest him—a bright book, a rag doll, simple large blocks, pretty ribbons or a box filled with empty spoons and bits of cloth. In the kitchen a wooden spoon and an old pot or cup will keep him busy.

If he is content, he will be better able to go on happily.

Dewey Warns Labor Of Political Action

(By Associated Press)

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential nominee, declared today he was certain workers will not submit to a labor front which barbers away their political citizenship.

In a message to the annual convention of the CIO New York State Industrial Union council, Dewey said:

"I refuse to believe the rank and file of labor is partisan to the philosophy of the dole and I refuse to believe that the practitioners of the dole philosophy can have labor votes delivered to them by anyone at all."

The governor asserted "our soldiers overseas and our soldiers of production will not turn back to doles and raking leaves."

"I say," the presidential candidate continued, "that those who seek to perpetuate a dole economy betray the aspirations of the American labor movement."

He praised organized labor's production front record and said New York could be proud of what he termed the state's low wartime strike losses.

The word grenade was taken from the French word for pomegranate, because of a resemblance in shape to the fruit.

Wellsville Soldier Escapes as Germans Blast Stalled Tank

(By Associated Press)

WITH AMERICAN FORCES
NEAP METZ, Sept. 8.—Four Ohioans were known to have been with the spearhead of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's army which today was reported on German soil in the vicinity of Metz.

Three were with a tank company commanded by Lt. T. E. Griffith of Humbolt, Kans., riding in a Sherman tank nicknamed "Cover Girl." They were Pfc. John Walter Klughaugh of Wellsville, Sgt. Jess Butler of Zanesville, and Corp. Milton Walston, Cincinnati.

Griffith told of how near they were to being blown into eternity. "We heard there were no more Germans in France," he said, "so we lit out for Metz. At Jonaville we ran into German infantry with mortars and 88's. At that point we took what the air force calls evasive action—and we ran out of gas."

"Our tank was like a clay pigeon, and the Germans started pouring it on. We took to the woods, and the minute the last man was cut an enemy shell hit right on the turret."

"When the fire died out, we borrowed 10 gallons from another tank and started on, but we got it again and had to get out. The engines were still running, but that was about all that was left of our tank."

At last reports, "Cover Girl" was limping to the rear and the company was hunting a new tank to ride into Metz.

Sgt. Leonard A. Piccicenteno of Canton, Ohio, was with one of the infantry units that had sieged right up to the border.

"We've been around since Cherbourg, and we'll still be there pitching when we reach Berlin," he said.

Forty years of reliability, stamina and low-cost operation have made Ford cars the choice of millions. Letters from Ford owners in cities and towns and in the country, tell how well their cars are standing up. And almost always, the owner gives a big share of credit to his friendly Ford dealer, whose careful Protective Service contributes so much to maintaining America's essential transportation.
NEWS NOTES—In the Ford main powerhouse at the Rouge plant, the largest of its kind, cool is the principal fuel. But there is only one scoop-shovel in the entire building and it is chrome-plated and kept as a relic. Nowadays the cool is pulverized, blown into the boilers like gas.

their defenses opposite the Third army, making Patton's progress more difficult now.

The question of supplies presents the western Allied command with one of its biggest tasks. Our battle-front is tremendously long, and it has been moving forward so fast that communications have become greatly extended. It's a vast job to provide that line with food and equipment of all sorts. It will be doubly tough until we open more ports along the English channel.

That's precisely why the Germans are fighting so hard to hold such useful ports as Le Havre, Brest, Calais and Boulogne. This is just another proof that a great battle isn't confined to the firing line. Without supplies the firing line is helpless.

THE REST OF MY LIFE WITH YOU

by Faith Baldwin

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR
That was a good, a golden summer. Matthew adjusted himself to living in the quiet apartment, working, seeing his mother at intervals. He was not lonely. It wasn't that he did not think of Irene or cease to miss her, but he was busy. There were always patients and invitations, and Sam and Bill with whom to talk to over the day's work.

Bill married in July and went off on his honeymoon. The office was rather slack, and Matthew was able to drive up now and then for just a night and for almost every week-end. He played golf, swam in the pool, defeated Jimmy Treadway at tennis, lay on the terrace or beside the pool and toasted himself a pleasant brown.

Judith thought, watching him one day: This was a dreadful mistake. There was Matthew lying across the pool from her, his dark head on his arms, sleepy in the sun, on a hot Sunday in the late afternoon. Ella's weekend guests were rather on the tottering side, none swam. Mary had had her swim and gone for a walk with Lynn, also there for the weekend. Jimmy Treadway had come over for lunch, he and Judith had quarreled, and he had gone away in a minor rage, threatening to never see her again.

Matthew rolled over and squinted up at the blue bowl of the sky. Judith's bathing suit was white and she was bronze against it as she looked at him, and could look safely because her glasses were dark green.

"All you need is a tin cup," he suggested, "take off the disguise."

She said, "I don't want to get wrinkles." "So Jimmy won't love you with wrinkles? What kind of guy is he? I never heard so much horse talk in my life as at lunch. Why did you ask me up anyway? Lynn and mother had a picnic on the terrace. I don't like your boy friend as well as I thought I would."

"Just because you don't play polo—" "I sit on the side lines and wait for the fractures." She said, "Well, maybe Jimmy isn't interested in clinics."

"Bet he thinks it's an alimony jail." Judith declared, "Just because you don't even ride—" "I could," emphasized Matthew, and sat up, "and I'd be good too. I used to, you know. But I haven't time, my girl, for social graces." He stood up, dove, swam across the pool and climbed up, dripping, beside her. "I'm tired of shouting at you," he complained and lay down beside her.

Judith moved away slightly, and Matthew asked indignantly, "What's the matter, afraid of getting your suit wet or have I some dread disease? By the way, that's a rather fetching little number, what there is of it. Talk about exposure—" "Sorry," said Judith shortly.

"You are not." He rolled over on his back, put his hands up to shield his eyes and looked at her from underneath them. "You're a very good-looking infant," he observed; "who would have thought it years ago? A fright, you were then." "Never," demurred Judith. "I always had style."

Matthew laughed. "Wonder if Mother and Lynn are back? She'll probably come home covered with poison ivy."

Judith said impulsively, "Isn't it a shame they can't be married?" "They? Who? What are you talking about?"

"Your mother and Lynn Mortimer."

"Of all the crazy ideas," he remarked and remembered that Irene had spoken of this to him, and how annoyed he had been.

Judith said crossly, "Oh, do grow up, Matthew! He's in love with her—isn't he?—and has been for years."

Matthew's mouth was a straight line. "Have you forgotten that he has an insane wife?"

"No, I haven't," answered Judith, and neither has he. At least that's the kind of man he is. But it's tragic. They're such good companions.... and if anyone deserves a break, your mother does. And Mr. Mortimer too."

"A break?" He stared at her blankly. "She has everything in the world, her work, her friends, good times."

"And companionship?" asked Judith. "I'm still around," declared Matthew.

Judith said after a pause, "Of course you are. But how about the companionship of a contemporary?" She clasped her hands around her knees. "Of a special one, a man she could love and with whom she could grow old happily."

He interrupted. "You don't think you just talk."

Judith said, after a moment, "I feel older than you. You won't face things, will you? I don't care how much she loves you, Matthew, she needs more—"

"Sure, I know he's fond of her.... and she of him. But, Judy, take my word for it. She's the type who loves one man.... and marries him. And no other."

"Perhaps," murmured Judith, "you wouldn't know about that," asserted Matthew.

She took off her glasses and looked at him. Her very blue eyes blazed. "Wouldn't I?"

A servant came tottering down the lawn. "Cocktails," deduced Matthew. "Well, I'd better swim first; if I drink I'll drown." He rose and pulled Judith to her feet. She asked, trying to free her hands, "Sore at me, Matthew?"

"No... yes, for a moment. Then I realized you are only a romantic child." He said, "so I wasn't any longer. How about getting that suit wet?"

"Matthew, don't—" But he picked her up, and with no particular gentleness, flung her into the pool.

That night sitting at dinner with Lynn and his mother, Matthew found himself regarding them with an exasperated curiosity. Lucky, he thought, that I sort of grew up accepting Lynn, liking him better than any other men I ever knew, or I'd take a punch at him, just in case.... But there wasn't any "in case." Knowing Lynn, knowing his mother, he couldn't think, even briefly, of a situation with a capital S. Something like compunction stirred him for a moment. Sure, as he had told Judy, sure, he knew that Mortimer was fond of Mary Norman.... you just took that for granted. But if he was really deeply in love with her?

Matthew was more than thirty, and a doctor. He knew it was perfectly possible for a man of Lynn Mortimer's age to be in love; and for a woman of his mother's age, as far as that went. He had seen more than one of them in his practice. Indian summer, second blooming, and bringing to love the mellow warmth of autumn sunlight and the flaming glory of the autumnal trees. He knew it. But these were other women, not his mother. His mother was different. His mother was unique, and apart. She belonged to the memory of his father and to him. So, stirred, a very little, he looked tolerantly at Lynn Mortimer and thought: If it's true, well poor devil....

Judy, confound her. Romantic little idiot. Treadway wasn't good enough for her, not even if you considered his undeniable good looks and his gobs of money. Treadway was all brown and no brain, half horse, Centaur, that was Treadway. A girl of Judy's caliber would tire of him in a year. Moreover, she wasn't in love with him. You could tell that, said Matthew to himself, tinkling the ice in his glass. "Good coffee," he commented. "Lord, I hate to go back to town." "Must you?" asked his mother. "Up and at it bright and early tomorrow morning, at the hospital," said Matthew. "There are some interesting cases on my service just now." He expanded about them and they listened, Lynn with half his mind and Mary with interest and some distaste. Matthew was so graphic. "Matthew," Irene had said once, "goes in for dotting all the is."

Salem China Shows Power In Winning First Series Fray, 7-0

Victors Are Superior In All Departments As They Down Demings For Edge In Series

Exhibiting superiority in every department of the game, the Salem China last night grabbed the psychological advantage and the first game of the 1944 city softball series by dropping error-ridden Demings, 7-0, as the Pottery hurler, Dale Ritchie, turned in one of his best shows of the season.

Definitely the best team last night, the Potters not only performed with air-tight defensive play through the nine-inning fray, but came through at the plate with nine telling blows against speedy, hard-fighting Demings. Pump mound worker.

Although Brudery was hit harder than usual and lost the game by seven runs, a lot of credit goes to the diminutive pitcher for his continual heads-up ball playing.

Flooding the lanes and short pokes like a veteran infielder, Brudery also exhibited his batting prowess by slugging out a long double to right-center in the fifth inning. The slush was one of the longest at the field last night and would have been a certain home run at Centennial park, but the concrete bleachers were in the way yesterday and the knock was good for but two bases.

Ritchie, working hard for the China after a three weeks' layoff, turned in a superb ball game from the hill. Striking out ten men and allowing but three hits, Ritchie found himself far from trouble most of the way.

On two occasions, once in the first frame and again in the fifth, he looked as though the Pumpers might come through with a score, but Ritchie buckled down—as only a car—and worked himself right out of his predicaments.

In the first inning, Demings got two men on—one on second and another on third—with no one out, and Ritchie retired Bill Hieb, Ralph Phillips and Brudery in order to avoid scores. Both Phillips and Brudery fanned. This inning was the only time Demings managed more than one hit.

The other threat came in the fifth when Kenny Brudery led off with his hot double to right-center. With no one out, Ritchie walked Joey Deming. On the next pitch, Dick McArthur, Ritchie took his pop fly and catching Brunner was first, made a double play. Gordy Allen then fouled out to John (Tony) Demotta, to end the inning.

China scores started in the first half of the second frame, when Bill Stark singled to right and advanced to second on an error. He advanced to third on a passed ball and scored when Razor Eddie, the next hitter, singled sharply over second. Demotta and Fred Reese were retired, ending the inning with one run on two hits.

Another pair crossed the plate in the third inning. Dan Kenst led off and walked. Jim Nocera bunted and was safe on an error. Kenst going to third and Nocera to second. No body was out. Russ Morrison then fouled out to Dick McArthur.

Pitching Predominates In Girl's Softball; Pretty Young Things Throw No-Hit Contests

Boosters Delay Weekly Session

Booster club members—now in the midst of the 1944-45 membership drive—have postponed their regular meeting tonight until next week, Art Brian, club treasurer said today.

Plans call for a meeting about mid-week to spur the drive and distribute tickets and stickers to new members, Brian said. Today's meeting was postponed because of the softball playoffs. Members who are still without their automobile stickers can secure them by seeing Art Brian or Joe Kelley.

PARKS GO SCORING MAD TO WIN, 16-3, OVER COLUMBIANS

Hard-Hitting Class B Outfit Takes First Game Of Series

The Park A. C. aggregation—definitely on the powerful side of the ledger—slashed out 13 safeties in a wild scoring Class B city series at Reilly stadium last night to defeat their title-rivals, the Columbians, 16-3.

Limited to just four hits by Park hurler Bowman, the Columbians never led in the ball game. The Parks scored five runs in the first and the Irish two.

Parks continued their scoring spree with a run in each of the third, fourth and fifth innings. A big eight run surge in the sixth frame made the contest a settled game.

The only other Columbian score came in the third inning. The Columbians had eight errors and the Parks just two. Summary:

St. Louis Tied With Yanks For American Loop Top Spot

By JACK HAND, Associated Press Sports Writer

St. Louis was back atop the American league today, tied with the New York Yankees, after three days in second place, but infield jitters and the onrushing Detroit Tigers gave Manager Luke Sewell no peace of mind.

Joe McCarthy's clan was due to open a cut throat series with the fourth place Boston Red Sox at Fenway park today while St. Louis hoped to continue paving their "cousins" from Chicago whom they have drubbed 10 out of 14 starts.

The Browns almost missed their chance to tie the idle Yanks last night because of early-inning boots against Chicago. Three runs in the ninth inning, two off the bat of Mike Chartak who came through with a bases loaded single, turned the tide, 5 to 4.

Tex Shirley, the third St. Louis hurler, was credited with his fifth win over Reliefer Gordy Hantzberger in a game played before 6,455 Chicago fans.

Detroit pulled to within a single game of the deadlocked leaders on Dizzy Trout's three-hit shutout of Cleveland, 3-0, for his 24th victory. The eccentric right-hander's record showed 28 complete games, six shut-outs (tops in the American) for 297 innings of effort.

Cramer Still Hot
Roger Cramer stretched his amazing hit string to 24 safe blows in his last 44 at bats as the Tigers raked Jim Bagby for nine singles and a double in his seven-inning stay.

Although there were only two girls listed in the American, the National presented an all-night program featured by St. Louis' 14th successful triumph over Chicago, 3-2.

Bill Voiselle capped his 19th as New York trimmed Boston, 9-3, with the help of Mel Ott's 26th homer and Ernie Lombardi's 9th.

OPA Stops Forcing Nim-

rods to Buy License

With His Shells

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, Sept. 8. — Ohio

nimrods today were advised that merchants who insist they buy a hunting license before purchasing shells or cartridges were violating

Office of Price Administration regulations.

Francis J. Massaro, of the Columbus district OPA office, said numerous complaints had been received from hunters within the past week.

"This is a tying-in agreement," Massaro said. "And is contrary to

OPA regulations which state a refusal to sell goods except in combination with other goods is a violation."

He advised hunters that the ceiling prices on shells and cartridges are: Shotgun shells (25 per box), 12 gauge, $1.38; 16 gauge, and 20 gauge, $1.32; rifle cartridges (50 per box), .22 caliber long, 34 cents and .22 caliber short, 21 cents.
